

Experience reflective supervisory interactions in a way that a written text cannot provide

The California Center for Infant-Family and Early Childhood Mental Health at WestEd Center for Prevention and Early Intervention presents:

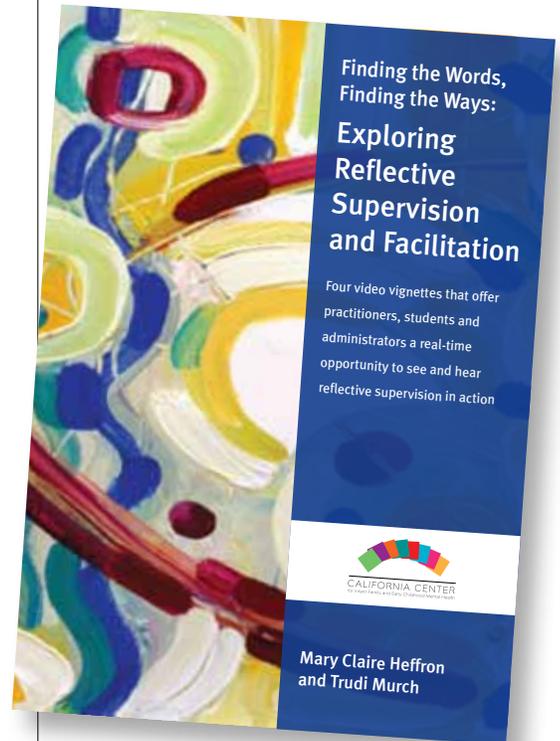

Finding the Words, Finding the Ways: Exploring Reflective Supervision and Facilitation

By Mary Claire Heffron and Trudi Murch

a DVD of four compelling video vignettes that offer practitioners, students and administrators a real-time opportunity to see and hear reflective supervision and facilitation in action

Each vignette offers:

A brief "back story"	The supervisory dilemma
The supervisory session	Turning points in the supervision
The supervisor's reflection	Supervisory skills and strategies
The supervisee's reflection	Themes

Potential audiences include:

- Supervisors
- Coaches and consultants in early intervention and childhood programs
- Organizational and agency administrators considering adoption of a reflective supervision model or seeking to improve existing supervisory processes
- Newly hired direct-service staff

The DVD demonstrates the potential richness of the supervisory process: the opportunities for learning, for mid-course correction, for solving problems, and for ensuring quality program outcomes.

A companion manual discusses how to use the DVD in training settings and as part of professional development activities or an orientation process. It includes questions for general discussion and an annotated list of readings and resources.
